Venus Ebony Starr Williams (born June 17, 1980) is an American professional tennis player who is a former World No. 1 and is ranked World No. 36 in singles as of July 29, 2013. She has been ranked World No.1 in singles by the Women's Tennis Association on three separate occasions. She became the World No. 1 for the first time on February 25, 2002, becoming the first black woman to achieve this feat during the Open Era. She is credited as changing the women's game and ushering a new, modern era of power and athleticism on the women's professional tennis tour. She is also regarded as the best grass court player of her generation and she is widely considered as one of the all-time greats of women's tennis.

Her seven Grand Slam singles titles tie her for twelfth on the all time list, and is more than any other active female player except for her younger sister Serena Williams. Her 22 overall Grand Slam titles consist of seven in singles, thirteen in women's doubles, and two in mixed doubles. Her five Wimbledon singles titles tie her with two other women for eighth place on the all-time list. Venus Williams is one of only four women in the open era to have won five or more Wimbledon singles titles. Between the 2000 Wimbledon Championships to the 2001 US Open, Williams won four of the six Grand Slam singles tournaments held. She is one of only five women in the open era to win 200 or more main draw Grand Slam singles matches.

Williams has won four olympic gold medals, one in singles and three in women's doubles. She and her sister Serena have won more Olympic gold medals than any other female tennis players. At the 2000 Sydney Olympics, Williams became only the second player to win Olympic gold medals in both singles and doubles at the same Olympic Games, after Helen Wills Moody in 1924.

23. The text suggests that Venus Williams
- A. is equally professional as her sister, Serena William.
 - B. is the best tennis player in Wimbledon.
 - C. is the best and rare tennis player in the Olympic .
 - D. is a rare and highly professional woman tennis player.
 - E. is the most competitive tennis player of all time.
24. The main idea of the first paragraph is explicitly stated by the following statement.
- A. "... she is widely considered as one of the all-time greats of women's tennis.
 - B. "She is also regarded as the best grass court player...."
 - C. "she is credited as changing the women's game"
 - D. "... [She] is ushering a new, modern era of power and athleticim on the women's professional tennis tour."
 - E. [She] is an American professional tennis player...."
25. She is one of only five women in the open era to win 200 or more main draw Grand Slam singles matches. (Paragraph 2).
The underlined word is a closest in meaning to
- A. rivals
 - B. games
 - C. versus
 - D. strength
 - E. champion

This text is for questions 26 to 29.

Once a memory is created, it must be stored (no matter how briefly). Many experts think there are three ways we store memories: first in the sensory stage; then in short-term memory; and ultimately, for some memories, in long-term memory. Because there is no need for us to maintain everything in our brain, the different stages of human memory function as a sort of filter that helps to protect us from the flood of information that we're confronted with on a daily basis.

The creation of a memory begins with its perception: The registration of information during perception occurs in the brief sensory stage that usually lasts only a fraction of a second. It's your sensory memory that allows a perception such as a visual pattern, a sound, or a touch to linger for a brief moment after the stimulation is over.

After the first flicker, the sensation is stored in short-term memory. Short-term memory has a fairly limited capacity; it can hold about seven items for no more than 20 or 30 seconds at a time.

Important information is gradually transferred from short-term memory into long-term memory. The more the information is repeated or used, the more likely it is to eventually end up in long-term memory, or to be "retained." Unlike sensory and short-term memory, which are limited and decay rapidly, long-term memory can store unlimited amounts of information indefinitely.

People tend to more easily store material on subjects that they already know something about, since the information has more meaning to them and can be mentally connected to related information that is already stored in their long-term memory. That's why someone who has an average memory may be able to remember a greater depth of information about one particular subject.

26. The text is about
- how human brain works
 - how the long-term memory occurs
 - how to protect our memory from being lost
 - how to store information in our memory
 - how to maintain everything in our brain
27. According to the text, ...
- not all information in short-term memory is stored in long-term memory.
 - the process of transfer from short-term to long-term memory is very fast.
 - the process of transfer from short-term to long-term memory is no more than 20 seconds.
 - short-term memory have unlimited capacity.
 - the perception of information happens after the creation of memory.
28. We know from the text that
- we can store all information we get in our long-term memory.
 - the process of storing information is done in three stages.
 - the work of our memory depends on the capacity of it.
 - short-term memory is the most important memory.
 - information just stays for a while in our memory.

29. "... that helps to protect us from the flood of information that we're confronted with on a daily basis." (Paragraph 1)

The underlined word is closest in meaning to

- A. encountered
- B. compared
- C. united
- D. expressed
- E. interpreted

What is the benefit of tourism for local people? Well, tourism is now a huge contributor to the economics of most countries. Tourism industries can bring money, job vacancy and advancement especially to developing regions. However, this money often goes into the pockets of foreign investors, and only benefits for local people.

Tourism industries will not give much benefit to local people if, for example, multinational chains don't care about the surrounding nature when they build new hotels this can cause many social, culture and geographical problems. Some local people may get job and money from that international hotel chain.

However in case of missing that opportunity, some of them still have their own environment.

Moreover, some facts show that tourists tend to go, visit and spend their money in restaurant, bars and even luxury hotels of that multinational chains, they less go to such places; restaurant, bars, hotel, which are owned by local people. This can prevent the local people's business from become even larger.

Most important thing, tours or exoursions of tourism have little effect on nature, even it can disrupt or destroy ecosystems, and environment, and if it does, the local people will get the risk.

So the local government policies should be put in place to ensure that tourism will make the benefit spreading widely, the policies should guarantee that tourism will not cause any harm to any local people or places.

30. What is the topic of the text?

- A. Tourism is a huge contributor to economics of most countries.
- B. Job vacancy derived from the tourism industry.

CAPTAIN PHILLIPS

Captain Phillips is an upcoming 2013 American biographical action thriller film directed by Paul Greengrass based upon the book, A Captain's Duty: Somali Pirates, Navy SEALs, and Dangerous Days at Sea, by Richard Phillips with Stephan Talty, and starring Tom Hanks. It is produced by Scott Rudin, Dana Brunetti, and Michael De Luca. The film tells a biopic of merchant mariner Captain Richard Phillips, who was taken hostage for several days by Somali Pirates when the container ship Maersk Alabama which sailed from southern Oman down along the coast of Somalia and then to Kenya was hijacked in 2009.

Captain Richard Phillips (Tom Hanks), a veteran merchant mariner, still lives in his native New England, and he's a plainspoken family man full of anxiety about the economically bleak new world his kids are facing. When his wife (Catherine Keener) drops him off at the airport, we can see reverse her. The film then cuts to Somalia, a land of dust and poverty, where the pirates are recruited for their mission as if they were migrant farm workers lining up to be chosen for that day's labor. Greengrass doesn't have to fill in much about the violent, chaotic breakdown of Somalia to let us know that these men have little choice.

The film does not generate quite the same level of excruciating suspense as some of Greengrass' previous triumphs, but it nonetheless holds us hostage as it proceeds. As for the four Somali immigrants, they are remarkably effective in their first professional acting gigs.

The depletion of fossil fuels such as coal, oil and gas leads to seek for some alternate power sources, and nuclear power is the only power source that can meet the electricity demands in the future. However, nuclear power has some advantages and disadvantages. Of the advantages, nuclear is efficient. One kg of fuel of uranium gives energy equivalent 3,000 tonnes of high grade coal. Next, nuclear power plants require a little space compared to thermal power plant for the same MW output. Also, nuclear fuel is available in plenty amount all over the world. Therefore, fuel supply to plants will be continuing for hundreds of years. But, some disadvantages of nuclear plants are also obvious. In nuclear plants safety is primary concern rather producing electricity. There is significant risk of leakage of radiation in case of any accident. The fission by products released are generally radio-active and pollute the land, water, atmosphere and other natural resources. It requires large water mass for cooling purposes. Therefore, the plant should be near to a sea or river with the risk of contaminated water. Finally, it requires a large area around the plant to be isolated from living, almost 5 km in radius.

39. Nuclear radiation can be a threat to the environment by way of ...

- A. leaking it in an accident.
- B. emitting greenhouse gasses.
- C. using water to cool in nuclear reaction.
- D. needing more uranium from the nature.
- E. requiring areas large enough to build the plant.

Beggars have become a big problem for us today. They come as street musicians, street boys, “sick” people, “lost” people, or just beggars. As their number is getting bigger, the municipal government feels the need to set a regulation to ban beggars. Many people support this.

They say that begging makes people lazy and bad survivors. They are like parasites. Criminals take advantage of their existence. Car drivers are strong-armed in crossroads, motorbikes are seized, trucks are hijacked, etc. A man in a rural area takes them to the city with his truck in the morning and pick them up in the afternoon. They have made an agreement to share what they get. Some children are reported to have been kidnapped not for ransom. They are forced to be beggars.

Some people, however, say that we must help beggars. They become beggars because they have no choice. What they get everyday is only enough for buying food. Being a beggar is better than being a thief or a robber. So it is a high time to apply their religious teaching to care for others. In addition, what they do is to help the government to check crime-rates.

Despite the controversy of their existence, beggars continue to color the life of urban people.

40. What do you think about the man who transports beggars from their villages to the city?
- A. He is generous.
 - B. He is exploitative.
 - C. He is a travel agent.
 - D. He is their protector.
 - E. He is doing business.

41. “Car drivers are strong-armed in crossroads”. (Paragraph 2).

The underlined words is closest in meaning to

- B. helped to overcome traffic problems
- C. suggested to always be careful
- D. demanded to obey traffic rules
- E. directed to the correct paths

This text is for question 42.

Ecotourism is broadly defined as low impact travel to endangered and often undisturbed locations. It is different from traditional tourism because it allows the traveler to become educated about the areas - both in terms of the physical landscape and cultural characteristics, and often provides funds for conservation and benefits the economic development of places that are frequently impoverished. Due to the growing popularity of environmentally related and adventure travel, various types of trips are now being classified as ecotourism. Most of these are not truly ecotourism however because they do not emphasize conservation, education, low impact travel, and social and cultural participation in the locations being visited. Therefore, to be considered ecotourism, a trip must meet the following principles set forth by the International Ecotourism Society as follows. It minimizes the impact of visiting the location (i.e.- the use of roads). Also it builds respect and awareness for the environment and cultural practices, ensures that the tourism provides positive experiences for both the visitors and the hosts, and provides direct financial aid for conservation. In addition, it provides financial aid, empowerment and other benefits for local peoples, and it raises the traveler's awareness of the host country's political, environmental and social climate.

42. What is the main idea of the text?
- A. Ecotourism is determined on the focus of the travel.
 - B. Ecotourism needs to be differentiated from conventional tourism.
 - C. In travel industries, not all of trips to enjoy the nature are called ecotourism.
 - D. Travelers claim to have ecotourism, which turns out to be an incorrect claim.
 - E. Tourism is ecological when it meets at least four essential elements to happen.

Questions 48 to 50 based on the following cloze test.

Octopuses are mollusks, a kind of animal with a soft body. Unlike other mollusks, such as clams and oysters, octopuses and squid have no hard (48) to protect them. An octopus is an animal without any bones. Surrounding the main portion of its body is a fleshy covering, called a mantle. Most of the internal organs of an octopus are inside the mantle. An octopus has two big (49), so it has very good vision. Seals, eels, and other sea animals prey on octopuses. An octopus' main method of defense is to shoot a cloud of dark ink into the water. The ink cloud confuses the attacker, and the octopus jets away. Octopuses can also (50) color rapidly when they are in danger. They change color to fit in with their surroundings. This helps them to hide from prey.
